CITIES ASKED TO AID UNEMPLOYED

Emergency Agencies to Find Work for Idle, Part of Program.

Washington.—Tentative recommendations for providing work for the nation's unemployed workers, estimated at 3,700,000 to 4,000,000, were completed for submission to the national conference on unemployment.

The recommendations, drawn up by the conference's steering committee on the basis of reports from the various other conference committees, were characterized as an emergency program and said to be based on the principle that unemployment is in the main a problem for solution by the individual communities, the federal and state governments aiding in such ways as possible.

Establishment of representative emergency committees in the communities to co-ordinate the work of finding jobs for the involuntary idle and for registration of the unemployed was understood to be recommended as the initial step in the relief program. Other recommendations were understood to include:

Publication of the number of unemployed by the individual communities.

Establishment of part-time work by manufacturers, thus increasing the number of workers used by each plant.

Operation of factories and mills in the making of stock where possible.

Continuation of repair and similar work on a normal scale.

Doing of repair and alteration work by office building, hotel and home owners during the coming winter instead of in the spring as usual.

Expansion of street, sewerage, repair and building work of municipalities to the maximum volume.

Establishment of part-time work by municipalities.
